MELODRAMA AT THE MURDER

WHODUNNIT?

6/22/24. 7PM

It's 1892 and opening night at the Grand Victoria. The great Narcissa DeVine is once again headlining, and there seems to be nothing theater owner Ida Songbird can do about it. Even the play itself is mired in controversy. Allegedly written by Daniel Steal, rehearsals have been beset by mishaps ever since his former friend Cain Abel declared the story to be his own. Notorious theatre critic Alfonse McGreedy is in attendance to cut the star down to size, and both self-proclaimed playwrights would prefer understudy Lucy Lostchild inherit the spotlight. DeVine's many enemies are offset by ardent suitor Duke Richman, although his interest seems limited to the diva's life 25 years ago. As the curtain is about to rise, her leading man is replaced by a total stranger. Many years of behind the scenes secrets take center stage when a shocking death brings the show to a halt. Can the truth be uncovered and justice served?
