THE "CASE" OF OLD ABE

*Submitted by Village of Richfield Springs Historian
Harriett Geywits*

There were many area dealers in our farming area when the new phenomenon of machinery that didn't require the use of horses started in the early 1900s. One of the first to offer their products was the Case Corporation.

Locally, Harold C. Brockway, was an agent and his 1917 ad stated that the Case tractor was compact, powerful and efficient and that you could see it in operation on the farm of Russell Bloomfield to see what it would do. In 1918, Brockway had shown the tractor at the Richfield Springs Agricultural Fair, and commented that the Case farm tractor, which created such a favorable impression at the fair, would now be at his garage. Farmers interested should call and see it and make arrangements for a practical demonstration which would prove that there was nothing like it.

By 1938, David Springer and Sons (Frank and Ellis) received a comment in the local Mercury stating that they had been busy with trucking in Case machinery for which they were salesmen. They gave demonstrations at both the Richfield and Warren Granges.

The Case company's founder was Jerome Increase Case (1819-1891) who was born in Williamstown, Oswego County, New York. He developed an interest in agriculture when he read about a machine that could cut wheat without people needing to use their hand methods. He worked on designing a small threshing machine, taking it to Rochester, Wisconsin in 1842. He had learned that the area was a wheat center of the Midwest and established a company to manufacture his machines. In 1843, he moved his business to Racine, Wisconsin in order to have better access to water power, opening the Racine Threshing Machine Works. By 1863, he had partnered with three of his top employees and the company grew with the production of the first portable steam engine in 1869, used to power the wheat threshers. In 1890, the company expanded to South America and in 1904, Europe. The company sold their first gasoline tractor that year and had developed long line of products through the following years including threshers, binders, graders, water tanks, plows and even automobiles (1911-1927). By the start of the twentieth century, Case was the most prolific North American builder of engines, building over 36,000 steamers by the time it switched to gas tractors in 1927.

Buyers were always able to recognize a Case product by the company symbol - the bald eagle. This was a real bird in history with the name 'Old Abe' and the following is the story of that illustrious bird:

In the spring of 1861 when Chippewas were on a hunting trip in northern Wisconsin, they came across two eaglets in a great pine tree near the trail. When they cut down the tree, they found that one eaglet had died but Chief Sky took the other as a pet. Weeks later he traded it for a bushel of corn to a settler named Daniel McCann. When the eaglet grew enough to attempt escaping, McCann decided to sell it, taking the eagle to the nearest Civil War camp at Eau Claire. Admiring the impressive looking young bird, a civilian by the name of S. M. Jeffers actually bought it for the volunteers of Company C. The price paid was a Quarter Eagle gold coin which was worth about $20 at the time. The Company named their new mascot 'Old Abe' after their Commander-in-Chief, President Abraham Lincoln.

'Old Abe' became famous after joining Company C. He proved to be very intelligent and an inspiration to the men, acting almost like a fellow soldier. When Company C joined the 8th Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry Regiment at Madison in September 1861, the bird was adopted by the entire regiment. He was inducted into military service with a special ceremony and carried on a perch in a place of honor in the center of the front ranks by the flag.

Jerome Increase Case

There were many attempts to kill or capture the bird, but none were successful. He went through thirty-eight battles and skirmishes including the Vicksburg campaign. The 8th Wisconsin became known as the 'Eagle Regiment' and was praised for its service. 'Old Abe's' loyalty was proven when he would occasionally break his tethers and fly away, but always returned to his perch beside the flag. Generals would raise their hats in recognition when passing him, much to the enjoyment of the regiment.

His last battle was in August 1864 after which he returned to Wisconsin where he received the nation's cheers in many parades. When the band struck up a march, the eagle answered with his own battle cry. He was kept at the State House in Madison where thousands of visitors came each year. His last public appearance was in 1880 at a veterans' reunion in Milwaukee where he shared the platform with President Ulysses S. Grant.

Death came after a fire in 1881 from which he never recovered. Painting, replicas and a stone sculpture reminded the population of how much this special eagle had come to mean to the nation.

J. I. Case first saw the eagle in 1861 while he was at Eau Claire on business. Company C was on parade and the eagle's cry could be heard over the drums. When Case asked where the bird had come from and was told 'Old Abe's' story, he decided to make this his business trademark as soon as the war was over.

Beginning in 1865, this became the most famous bird in agricultural history. For over one hundred years the 'Case Eagle' identified all of the Case machinery, parts, dealers and literature around the world. Mr. Case even called one of the longtime machinery colors 'Flambeau Red' after the river near where the eagle was born. This familiar orange-red color was used on all Case tractors and equipment from the 1930s through 1984.

The Case name came to symbolize dependability and long-lasting strength just as the United States national bird, the eagle, did. The last model year featuring this symbol was 1969 when 'Old Abe' was retired and a new logo was adopted.

There were many who entered the agricultural manufacturing field through the years - some succeeding, some failing and some joining with other brands. One of these changes occurred in 1884 when Case purchased International Harvester's agricultural division, the company becoming known as Case-International, their tractors a modern red and black color. Later the Case Corporation joined with New Holland and other brands.

While the names may have changed just as the number of farms in the area has, there are many who remember the Case brand with its meaningful symbol. Perhaps the next time you spot a bald eagle sweeping over Canadarago Lake, you will think of its beauty and meaning as a symbol to Americans, but also, recall the story of 'Old Abe' and his contribution to the progress of our nation.

"A Dickens Of A Christmas!"

After much consideration Barbara &
 Jan Bartow have decided not to open their home based business
 "Dickens of a Christmas" again.

We want to thank our family, friends and our many loyal customers for their patronage over the past 25 years.

WE ARE NOW A VENDOR AT THE

LAWN & GARDEN

Spring lawn seeding basics

Spring has sprung, and there are many activities to enjoy now that the warmer weather has arrived. Many homeowners make the most of warmer weather by tackling projects around their properties. While autumn is a better time to overseed a lawn for new growth, satisfactory results still can be had if seeding is done early enough in the spring. Grass needs ample time to establish roots and grow strong before the summer heat takes its toll. Many types of grass need six to 12 weeks of ideal temperatures and growing conditions to germinate and produce a sturdy grass that will grow and endure. Seeding can be done to rejuvenate an existing lawn and fill in bare spots. It also can be done to start a lawn from scratch. The following are some tips to help make seeding projects more successful.

- Begin by raking the lawn to remove thatch and any fallen leaves leftover from autumn and winter. Raking also enables you to inspect the lawn for bare patches or matting of grass that may be indicative of a fungus or other problem.
- Dust off the mower and trim the lawn short, especially if it was left long at the end of last season. This will help seed penetrate the blades of grass and get to the soil beneath.
- High-traffic lawns may need aeration to counteract compacted soil. Moss on the ground is often an indication of compaction. Aeration will help with this problem, as it pokes holes into the soil to enable oxygenation that keeps new grass robust and promotes faster growth. Lawn aerators can be rented from many garden centers.

- Spread a mixture of topsoil and compost over the top of the lawn. This will add nutrients through organic matter to the lawn and create a good base for the new seed to take root. It will also help strengthen any existing grass and promote long-term health.
 - Test a sample of the soil to check the pH. Grass prefers a neutral pH, but some soil tends to lean toward the acidic side, especially if you see the presence of moss. Knowing the pH will help determine just how much lime per square foot you will need to adjust it accordingly. Liming is a corrective measure and does not need to be used on a healthy, thriving lawn.
 - Invest in a spreader to add seed to the lawn. The spreader will have various settings that enable you to calibrate the rate of seed dispersion depending on your walking speed. Fill the spreader with seed and begin to walk around the lawn. Drop spreaders require you to apply seed in rows with no overlap. Broadcast spreaders will cast seed widely and may need some overlap to guarantee complete coverage.
 - Spread another thin layer of compost mix over the seed and water thoroughly. The compost will help keep moisture in while the seeds germinate.
 - Aim for lawn watering two to three times per day. The seed should be barely dry between watering. After seeds have germinated and established, you can reduce the frequency of watering but increase the depth of the watering to keep roots strong.
 - Avoid foot traffic on a newly seeded lawn until the grass is well established.

LAWN & GARDEN

Create a budget-friendly home landscape

Homeowners understandably envy the award-worthy photo spreads in lawn and garden magazines, wanting to emulate those same looks on their own properties. Scores of designers and landscape architects are involved in the process of creating those amazing lush lawns and perfectly placed plantings. Although not every homeowner has the budget to create lavish landscape designs, it's still possible for homeowners to create lawns they can be proud of.

- Establish your budget. The first step in any project is to determine how much money you can devote to the job. Once you have established the budget, all other factors can be built around it.
- Find an inspiration piece. Great landscapes are inspired by many things, whether it's a memorable piece of art or a landscape layout in a lawn and gardening magazine. Use photos of other gardens or neighbors' yards as inspiration and build off of them. As long as the theme is cohesive, it will look pleasing to the eye.
- Consider the space and how you want to use it. Understanding the space will help you better allocate your budget. If your yard is more of a retreat, look for ways to create privacy and a vacation feel. If you have kids and entertaining friends is a main priority, focus on recreational aspects, such as a pool, playset and some durable plants. Understanding how to allocate your budget will help you to avoid spending money frivolously.

- Think about reclaimed or repurposed materials. Brand new items can quickly eat up a budget. However, repurposing salvaged or inexpensive items can stretch that budget while adding some unique flair to a landscape. See if you can find an outdoor patio set that someone is giving away or selling for a lower price. All it takes is a coat of paint and some new cushions to make it look like new. Discarded bricks or stones can be worked into a patio space or used to create raised garden beds. Purchase inexpensive flower pots and then paint them to make them look like stone or another desired material.
 - Buy native plants. Native plants, shrubs, trees, and flowers will fare better than non-native, exotic plants. That means you'll have to spend less time and money nurturing them into health, and less money having to replace plants that cannot withstand your climate.
 - Consider perennial plants. Perennials may cost more at the outset, but the savings will be realized in the years to come.
 - Hire a professional. It may seem counterintuitive to spend money on a landscaping professional when you've established a strict budget, but that's one way to save money. Landscape artists or garden designers have the experience to guide you in the right direction and help you avoid potentially costly mistakes.
 - Use gravel in spots where plants don't thrive. Gravel is an inexpensive landscaping material that can fill in voids where plants or ground cover simply do not flourish. Those working on limited budgets may be happy to learn gravel is typically less expensive than concrete or pavers.
 - Ask friends or family for clippings. Don't be shy about admiring the plantings of those you know. Flatter their good taste and ask if you can have some clippings to propagate yourself. These clippings can turn into lush plants in no time — with no additional spending required.
- With some frugal spending, planning and budgeting, anyone can create a beautiful landscape. GT164006
